VISIT OF SENATOR BORAH.

Invitation to All—Laboring Men Should Hear Him.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who ranks among the senators of the first class, not only having the distinction of being an orator of repute, but being considered an authority on questions that involve public interest and welfare as well, will address the people of Ogden and Weber county in the Orpheum theater on the night of October 24. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock. Preparations are going forward to make his visit here the occasion of a great rally.

The visit of the Idaho senator to the future date in the campaign is considered significant with the labor situation in the United States, inasmuch as Mr. Borah will speak in defense of Mr. Hughes' position on the labor question. He will show by record, and by logical conclusion from the record, that Mr. Hughes is unequivocally the friend of organized labor, believes in organized labor and favors the eight-hour day for the working man because it is productive of the maximum efficiency.

That everyone might know where Mr. Hughes stands on the labor question the meeting will be in the nature of a mass meeting. All creeds, all classes, all classes of the human and industrial world to be found in this section of the intermountain country are invited to be present.

Because he has a special message to deliver to them, an invitation to attend has been extended to all representatives of organized labor and its affiliated organizations.

The Idaho senator is typically a western man. That he is big and broad is shown in the fact that he has been given rank among the foremost orators and statesmen of the country. The east has welcomed him as the brother of the west. In recognition of his oratorical talent in the senate, his broad judgment on all public questions which gave him the character of statesman, he was secured to tour the country in the interest of the candidacy of Mr. Hughes. The people of the nation have not yet ceased commenting on his recent brilliant address in Baltimore. This address, which dealt particularly with the policies of the present Democratic administration, has been the subject of press comment the country over. Back of those policies as exposed by

on Hunting Trip and Suddenly Disappears

Search for Drew Marshall, the Ogden druggist and manager of the Marshall Drug company, who has been missing since Wednesday night, when he became separated from his companions along the Bear river, thirteen miles west of Brigham City, where they had gone for a duck hunt in the marsh lands, was continued all of last night and today without the discovery of any clues that would enable the searching parties to ascertain his whereabouts. It is thought that he was either drowned in the deep channel of Bear river, or lost in the treacherous quicksands of that swampy region. The theory also was advanced that he might have been overcome by the long tramp in the marshes and laid down to die.

Authorities today were hopeful that the tules in the desolate areas near the shores of Great Salt Lake into which the river flows soon will give up the body.

Deputies from the office of Sheriff T. A. DeVine left this afternoon to aid the authorities from Boxelder county and the missing man's companions in the search which has been continuous from the hour that he failed to return to camp.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Marshall is prostrate at her home. Anxiety on the part of other friends and relatives has been manifested continuously since the report was received at the Elks club and at the sheriff's office at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon that the druggist was missing.

There is mystery in the disappearance, inasmuch as tracks thought to have been left by him were found within fifteen feet of the river at a point where the hunting party camped. There the tracks end. The shore line between them and the river is clear from vegetation as a floor.

In the belief that he had been drowned, John Zundell, sheriff of Box Elder county, telephoned the Weber county sheriff's office at 5:30 yesterday afternoon for "grab hooks" for use in dragging the river. A party from the Elks club, made up of James Wardleigh, Walter Herrick and others, left in an automobile at 5:30 yesterday afternoon to join the searchers. The "hook" was used to pull them. Returning to the city last night, they said about 40 men were on the scene conducting a systematic search.

Several others from the Masons', Elks' and Eagles' lodges, comprising about six auto loads, departed for the Bear river region to assist in the efforts to find some trace of the missing druggist.

In company of Charles Empey, manager of the Ogden Wholesale Drug company; George Farr; William T. Greenwell, secretary of the Elks' lodge; and John Myers, brother-in-law of Empey, Mr. Marshall left Ogden Wednesday afternoon for the Bear river duck grounds. The party proposed to spend a few days in the region where they might enjoy the sport.

Within a few days, Mr. Marshall placed on the highest judicial tribunal in the world, the fact that he acknowledged without hurting anybody's political corns, that he was the greatest friend of labor laws that ever occupied the governor's chair at Albany. During his two terms he has signed 56 labor laws, including among them the best labor laws ever enacted in this or any other state. He also urged the enactment of labor laws in his messages to the legislature, even going so far as to place the demand for a labor law in one of his messages to an extra session of the legislature.

"Only 162 labor laws have been enacted in this state since its erection in 1777—in 133 years. One-third of these, exceeding in quality all of the others, have been enacted and signed during Governor Hughes' term of three years and nine months.

"With such a record of approval and suggestion of progressive legislation in the interest of humanity to his credit, it is easy to believe that human rights will have a steadfast and sympathetic upholder in the new justice of the supreme court of the United States.

This article was written without bias or object of political effect. The facts presented speak for themselves. They show that Mr. Hughes' vigorous defense against attacks on his position with respect to the man who earns his bread by the sweat of his brow, to the legislature on righteous grounds. The public cannot ignore claims for the nominee whose record continuously has been one of delivering the goods.

ON BOTH SIDES OF ALL QUESTIONS.

A man can be steadfast and change his mind, but to change his mind for political expediency is merely to win the stamp of disapproval of the public. As a matter of safety first the public wants to know where its executive officer stands. The motive back of the Wilson policy of vacillation is depicted in an editorial appearing in the Chicago Tribune of a recent issue under the caption of "May a Man Change His Mind?" It says:

"When President Wilson's supporters discover that obviously he has been on all sides of every important issue in the last four or more years, they ask if it be not permissible for a man to change his mind.

"If Mr. Wilson once said that it was dangerous to allow the federal government to regulate such a matter as the employment of children, can he not be allowed to appear before congress, during a campaign, and request congress to pass an act giving the federal government power to regulate the employment of children?

"If Mr. Wilson once said that he was a 'fierce partisan of the open shop,' and opposed to the tyranny of labor, can he not be allowed to pass a campaign, to ask that congress pass an act establishing a basic eight-hour day for certain railroad brotherhoods, upon the ground that society demands the limitation of work to eight hours for humanitarian reasons, which have nothing to do with the case?

"If Mr. Wilson said that there were a lot of nervous people asking for had planned to move into his new store at the corner of Washington avenue and Twenty-fifth street.

The party did not establish camp until a short time before sundown. With this work finished, they started for the river duck grounds to shoot when the flight was good. Marshall, separating from his companions, took one direction. Others scattered out along the river. When darkness came, but Marshall failed to show up or answer the calls of his companions. They provided themselves with improvised torches and started out in search of him. It was then he was traced to within 15 feet of the river. They continued the search into the night while word was sent to Brigham City by a man in an automobile that he was missing and to send help.

In the party of Elks who went to the scene last night was Fred Marshall, a brother of the missing druggist.

Mr. Marshall established, and has managed, the business of the Marshall Drug company for the past five years. He was rated as one of the city's successful young business men. He had taken an active part in every movement that was for the public good and the promotion of business enterprise. His work in this line was particularly identified with preparations for Fashion Shows which have become an annual event in the city. His disappearance has brought expression of deep regret from the business fraternity of which he was a respected and honored member.

Those from the sheriff's office who left for Bear river this afternoon were Sheriff DeVine and Deputy J. G. Crompton. They were accompanied by Frank Burgess.

Deputy Curtis Allison said no trace of the body had been found up to shortly before 3 o'clock. At that time the searchers were dragging the river.

Increased defense, but that the nation would remain calm, can he not, in a campaign, demand that some appropriation bills be passed making paper increases in army and navy?

"If Mr. Wilson said that he never would intervene in Mexico, can he not send a couple of little non-intervening expeditions into Mexico?

"If Mr. Wilson said he was for an 'incomparably superior navy,' can he not change the phrase to an 'incomparably adequate navy'?

"Why should not Mr. Wilson be permitted to say that he is unalterably for arbitration except in the case in which it is necessary to apply it?"

"Why can not Mr. Wilson say he is for economy in national government and decline to have anything to do with the budget system?

"Why cannot Mr. Wilson say that he is against intervention in any weak country and send marines into San Domingo, Haiti and Nicaragua?"

"Why can not Mr. Wilson say he is for an armed citizenry, 'trained and accustomed,' and then force Garrison to resign by scuttling the bill to train and arm the citizenry?

"May a man not change his mind? Certainly. We cheerfully accord him the privilege. We merely prefer not to have him administering the affairs of the nation in time of emergency. Opinion so fluid ought to concern no

Mr. Wilson's position is indefensible—he has no position. He has been too busy dodging the real issues. None knows where to find him. We need an executive officer who will keep the middle of the road. Mr. Hughes' record has been one of accomplishment for the common good. To make that record he has kept the middle of the road. The people of New York state knew where to find him. They knew he would not countenance any interference from the sidelines in his strides to record material progress that resulted in common benefit.

Harold P. Fabian, Republican nominee for attorney general; Judge Nathan J. Harris and Judge John E. Bagley will be the speakers at a Republican rally at Liberty tonight.

Republicans who attended the rallies in Pleasant View and North Ogden last night reported today that there were comparatively large turnouts in the two places.

The meeting at Pleasant View drew the larger attendance. Addresses were delivered by Dr. E. G. Mills, E. O. Leatherwood and Judge Nathan J. Harris.

A torchlight procession was staged by the Young Men's Republican club in North Ogden. The meeting there was addressed by E. O. Leatherwood and Capt. E. T. Hulaniski, city attorney.
